

ABSTRACT

The two-way communication system which provides program information distributed in a predetermined broadcasting system from a program information provider for a CATV subscriber through a CATV network, processes return information returned from the CATV subscriber, and transmits the processed information to the program information provider is disclosed.